

In his July 28, 1970 letter to Soregus, Hoch says of Farewell America and its statement that JFK had a Secret Service agent "code-named 'Dentist' whose function was to provide feminine companionship" that this came from "Paul Kresner's satirical 'suppressed excerpts' from William Manchester's book... (I suspect that JFK didn't need Secret Service help in finding cavities to fill.)"